Task 1: Identify Units of Action

Goal: Grab your monologue and some different coloured pens and break the scene into units- shifts in action, emotion or intention.

1. Mark moments where something changes (the emotion, the tactic being used, the focus of the conversation).

2. Give each unit a simple verb, adjective or phrase (e.g. "to persuade", "to escape", "to comfort").

3. Now try speaking each section of your monologue out loud- how can you use your voice to show the emotion/ tactic the character is expressing?

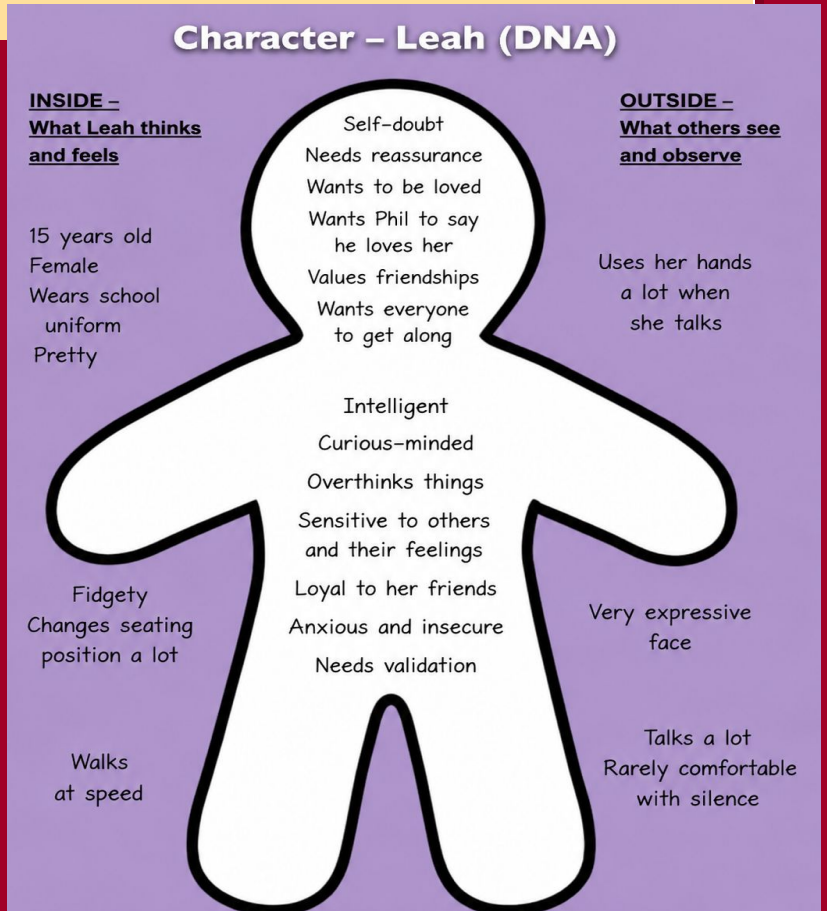

Task 2: Understanding Your Character

Complete the role on the wall worksheet, giving as much detail as possible, like the example here.

Instructions are on the back.

Once completed, get on your feet either alone, with a partner or in a group of 3 and explore your monologue to try and display both these internal traits (what thinking and feeling) and external traits (how they present themselves to others).

How does this impact your physical choices? How does you character stand, walk, sit etc?

Task 3: Explore Subtext/ Motivation

On your worksheet, write out 5 of the most important lines or phrases from your monologue and beneath each one, write what the character really means or feels beneath the words.

Or write why the character is saying that line- what are they hoping the effect will be on the character/s listening to them?

If you finish early please complete the extension task.
